

The Coolest Ride of the Summer

What is the best way to beat the California summer heat? Hop on a SummerLink train and get ready for a day full of surf and fun!

Summertime, and the livin' is easy, so it's time to relax the Southern California way—at the beach. Metrolink, the Riverside County Transportation Commission (RCTC), the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG), and the Orange County Transportation Authority (OCTA) have teamed up for SummerLink, weekend service on the Inland Empire–Orange County (IEOC) Line from Saturday, July 16, through Sunday, October 9. Grab your swimsuits, family, and friends and get this summer's hottest ticket—SummerLink!

Metrolink trains steer clear of traffic jams, long car rides, and beach-parking fees so you can enjoy a relaxing ride directly to the sand and surf of Southern California's beautiful beaches.

SummerLink tickets will be available for purchase from ticket vending machines (TVMs) at all Metrolink IEOC train stations! Metrolink monthly-pass and 10-trip-ticket holders are welcome on SummerLink. Passengers should arrive at the station at least 30 minutes in advance to purchase a ticket prior to boarding. Save time and purchase your ticket beforehand using any IEOC station TVM.

And there's good news for seniors and children boarding the SummerLink! All seniors 65 and older and youths 6 to 18 get a 25 percent discount with valid ID. All children under the age of 5 can travel for free when accompanied by a paying adult.

As an added bonus, many businesses in San Clemente will be holding contests you can enter just by showing your Metrolink ticket!

Weekend Adventure

We had been planning this family day trip for what feels like forever. Mom said she hadn't really thought about using Metrolink for fun until now, and she's letting me choose where we're going to go. Since the Metrolink San Bernardino Line runs on both Saturdays and Sundays, my parents told me that I could pick an activity for a weekend family adventure on the train.

There are so many exciting places to visit by taking the train. So many options, what was I going to choose? Should we go to China Town, or the Los Angeles Central Library, or maybe even Old Town Pasadena? I finally decided on Universal Studios and CityWalk.

The train schedule worked out perfectly to get us to L.A.

Union Station from San Bernardino by 8:15 a.m. As we boarded the train, I sat back and enjoyed the ride to Los Angeles. When we got to the station, I was surprised to find out that our Metrolink ticket was good for our trip on the Metro Red Line subway, too! We took the North Hollywood Line on the subway, and then took a free shuttle to Universal Studios to arrive right when they opened the gates at 9:00 a.m.

After the theme park, we shopped at Universal CityWalk and ate a really excellent dinner before heading back to the Metro Red Line subway, again included with our Metrolink round-trip ticket. Once back at Union Station, I tried to convince Mom and Dad to run over to Olvera Street, which is right across from the station, but they said that's a trip for another day. Now I can't wait until my next San Bernardino Line weekend adventure. I'm going to e-mail all of my friends about Metrolink. It's way better than sitting in traffic! Thanks Metrolink!

Last month, Connex took over from Amtrak as the operator of Metrolink service. On the eve of the change over, Amtrak sent our passengers this letter.

June 23, 2005

Dear Metrolink Passengers,

As this Saturday marks the last day Amtrak will operate Metrolink Commuter rail service, I wanted to take the opportunity to thank you for your patronage.

It has been an honor to serve you for the past 13 years and I hope that you've been pleased with the service provided by our crews. We've had the pleasure to get to know you and look forward to crossing paths with you again.

Starting Sunday, June 26, Connex Railroad will be responsible for providing Metrolink service, following the expiration of our contract.

Thanks again for trusting us with your commute.

Sincerely,

Richard H. Phelps
General Superintendent
Southwest Division

Take a Ride to the Wild, Wild West

A high-profile visitor recently rode into Metrolink's Chatsworth Station wearing a bronze hat and shiny spurs. Unveiled during a ceremony last December, Los Angeles' 12th District City Councilman Greig Smith presented the Chatsworth Cowboy statue to the Chatsworth Depot and the community as a gift from sculptor Joy Ballin.

The Chatsworth Cowboy has been on the community's wish list since Metrolink began service to the Chatsworth Depot in October 1992. In addition to serving as a Metrolink station, the Depot houses the Hal Bernson Community Room, offices for the Chatsworth Chamber of Commerce, a field office for Councilman Smith, a childcare center, a travel agency, and a coffee kiosk.

The Chatsworth Cowboy adds a beautiful touch to the station's Western theme. The Depot also contains a gallery of movie memorabilia that pays tribute to the many Western movies filmed at the foot of Rocky Peak and Stoney Point in the Santa Susana Mountains, where the Depot stands.

So saddle up, jump on a Metrolink train to the Chatsworth Depot to take a look at the newest visitor to ride into the station and get back to the Wild West!

Bike On Board!

Many Metrolink riders bring bicycles on board the train. As a safety reminder to all our passengers, the following rules apply to everyone who brings a bicycle on board:

- Bicycles must be secured with the straps on the lower level of each car. You will find these straps located on the far end of each car, away from the restrooms. In order to secure your bike, you must first flip up the bench seat if it is in the down position. Please note that space is available for only two bicycles per train car.
- Cyclists may be required to relocate to a different car or wait for a later train due to crowding.
- Gas-powered and three-wheel bikes are not permitted.
- Some areas are designated for priority seating for seniors and people with disabilities. Cyclists may have to relocate their bikes to another car in order to accommodate a senior or disabled passenger, especially passengers who use wheelchairs.
- If a passenger boards with a bicycle and there is already a passenger seated on the bench over the securing straps the conductor may also request that the passenger relocate to another vacant seat but cannot require the seated passenger to move. If there is no space in any other car the cyclist may need to wait for the next train.

We respectfully ask that passengers cooperate with cyclists when securing their bicycles for the safety of all riders.

Safety Matters

Pedestrian Crossings

At-grade pedestrian crossings are locations where passengers can cross a set of tracks to reach a boarding platform. Several Metrolink stations, such as Pomona (North), Glendale and Downtown Burbank, have them. When approaching this type of crossing, it is important to remember that, when the lights and bells are activated, you must stop and wait until the train passes. When you arrive at your station and exit the train, do not cross in front of or behind the train. Wait at the pedestrian crossing until the train leaves the station and the lights and bells are no longer active.

Along most of Metrolink's rail lines, and at many of our stations, there are at least two sets of tracks. When crossing tracks at a pedestrian crossing, watch for trains and be aware that trains may be running on any track in any direction. After the last car of a train passes, do not cross until the warning devices are no longer activated and there is no train approaching from the opposite direction. Be aware that freight trains and maintenance vehicles run on the same tracks as Metrolink trains and neither follows a set schedule or stops at Metrolink stations. They are also not required to sound their horn as they approach the station.

Safety rule of thumb: When you approach any crossing, always expect a train—on any track, at any time, from any direction.
